

Aboriginal

Wilderness Centre

Who we are

Aboriginal Wilderness Centre is owned and managed by Aboriginal people who are skilled and experienced educators and guides.

Madjulla has broad national experience in consulting and designing innovative intervention strategies by engaging a range of partnerships with emphasis on building the capacity of individuals, families and communities towards sustainable community cultural development.

Programs

Local Indigenous people teach you about the mighty Fitzroy River, one of Australia's last wild rivers, its' history, ecology, resource management and geography from an Indigenous perspective.

A wide range of general interest and accredited programs area available. Madjulla Inc draws on a wide network of Aboriginal people with specific knowledge and expertise in Nyikina language, culture, and contemporary issues.

Local attractions include the Derby Jetty

The Campsite

The Aboriginal Wilderness Centre provides a safe and comfortable education, training, tourist, conference and recreation facility. The centre is well equipped with 10 safari tents, a teaching/dinning room and 2 ablution blocks.

The Centre is also available for grops for conferences, spritual and artistic retreats.

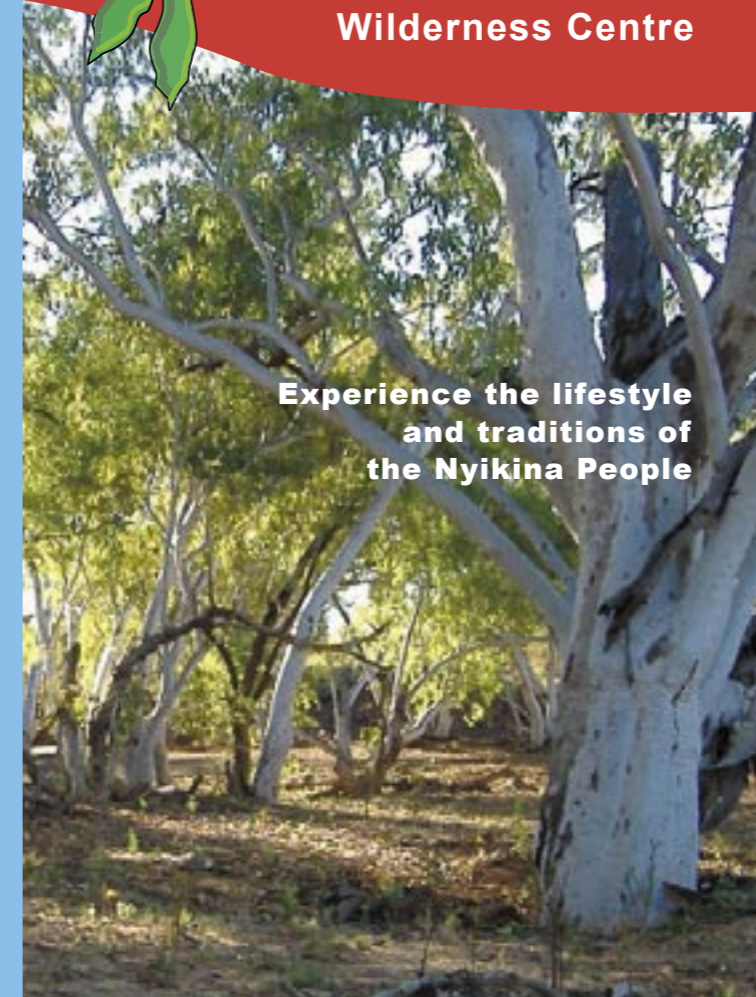

Getting there

The Aboriginal Wilderness Centre is located 80km south of Derby, and is easily accessible from the Great Northern Highway.

Contact us

Majala Wilderness Centre
PO Box 2747, Broome WA 6725, Australia
tel 040 892 2155 email majala@wn.com.au

Experience the lifestyle and traditions of the Nyikina People

Pastoral heritage along the bush tracks

Nyikina Aboriginal Culture
Cultural Immersion
Accredited Programs
Recreational Programs
Leadership Training

Sharing Aboriginal Culture

www.Majala.com

Cultural Education Research and Training

Your opportunity for a unique insight into the traditions, history and contemporary life of the traditional Aboriginal people of the Fitzroy River, Kimberley WA.

The Aboriginal Wilderness Centre provides a great opportunity for students and the general public to access a unique region of remote Australia.

Programs are tailored to the specific requirements of clients ranging from school, university and skills based training to cultural tourism and recreation.

The Mardoowarra (Fitzroy River) is one of the world's last great wild rivers and is the central focus of culture, history, resource management and future development of Nyikina people.

Nyikina People

Balginjirr Aboriginal Community is nestled between the Lower Liveringa Ridge and savannah grassy plain on the edge of the mighty Fitzroy River delta in the rugged West Kimberley region of Australia's northwest.

Nyikina people have occupied the lower Fitzroy River from the beginning of time and were the backbone of the local pastoral industry. The surrounding Mt Anderson Cattle Station continues to be managed by Nyikina people.

Who we are

The Aboriginal Wilderness Centre is owned and managed by Aboriginal people who are skilled and experienced educators and guides.

Madjulla Inc has broad national experience in consulting and designing innovative education programs for and about Aboriginal people and contemporary issues. Madjulla Inc is staffed by local Aboriginal people who combine academic and cultural skills and knowledge to provide a unique learning experience.

Programs

Local Indigenous people will teach you about the mighty Fitzroy River, one of Australia's last wild rivers, its' history, ecology, resource management and geography from an Indigenous perspective.

A wide range of general interest and accredited programs area vailable. Madjulla Inc draws on a wide network of Aboriginal people with specific knowledge and expertise in Nyikina language, culture, and contemporary issues.

Nearby Lower Liveringa Pool is one of many billabongs (water holes) that dot the dry river bed during the dry season (April-Nov).

The river supports a diverse ecosystem including native plants and an abundant wildlife particularly native birds and reptiles.

Savannah sunset

The mighty Fitzroy River in the dry season

Experience the lifestyle and environment of Nyikina People

